

Many Conflicting Rumors Concerning Effects of Coal Strike on Coking Operations

Union Organizers Bending
Every Effort to Halt Operations.

NO DEMANDS ARE MADE

Action of Men Purely in Sympathy
With Members of United Mine Workers; Plan to Workmen on Car on Way to Plants Is Successful.

The air is thick today with conflicting rumors as to the effect of the appeal to the non-union mine workers or the Connellsville region to join in the strike inaugurated in the unionized districts on Saturday. When verification of the rumors is sought it is found that many of them are without foundation and others very much exaggerated.

Thus one report had it that 12 or more plants in the Lower Connellsville district were completely idle to-day on account of the employees having failed to report for work. This list of the reputedly idle plants, included Orient, Herbert, Seagriff, Shamrock, Hoover, Royal, Katherine, Luzerne, Griffin No. 2, American No. 2 and some of the Frick operations. It was denied, however, that any of the latter, or any other plants in the vicinity of Republic, Masontown and Brownsville were completely idle. It was stated that they were operating but with reduced forces, the idle men comprising those who were members of the union before coming to the coke region.

Other plants were reported in partial operation as follows: Alicia, 90 per cent; Sterling, 80 per cent; Republic, 50 per cent; Tower Hill 1 and 2, 70 per cent; Donald No. 1 and 2, 50 per cent.

This morning between 5 and 6 o'clock two organizers boarded a trolley car at Fostedale on which were about 135 men bound for Edensburg and Leckrone and persuaded them to return home.

On the Washington county side of the Monongahela river it was said the one non-union plants working were Mather, Nemacolin and Crucible. Organizer Peeney of Pittsburgh was reported to be active among the miners in the region. There were also said to be other organizers. Peeney addressed a mass meeting at Masontown and Republic yesterday. He cautioned the men against any act of violence.

So far as reported there has been no disorder of any kind in the strike zone.

Handbills being distributed in the region by radicals are signed "Communist Party of America." They are radical in the demands. One that has been received in Unontown bears the reading, "Miners of America, Resist the Terror of Your Masters."

In no instance have miners made any demands of the employing companies. This was true of those who remained away from the Allison plants Saturday. It was the same today, so far as is known. The men have no grievances. They are striking in sympathy with the United Mine Workers, in response to pleas made by the organizers.

PITTSBURG, April 3.—Every union mine in the Pittsburg Bituminous District was closed today by the strike of United Mine Workers. Interest centered in the non-union mines where union leaders said they had made progress. In inducing men to join with them, the Pittsburg Coal Producers Association stated it had no detailed information from all non-union mines but said that numbers of them were working as usual.

Troop headquarters of the Pennsylvania State Police at Greensburg and Butler reported that details sent into the mining regions had not been called in a single case of disorder. Sheriff in all coal counties declared there was no industrial trouble anywhere. President Robert Gibbons of District No. 5 said that 200 non-union men did not report for work at Rices Landing on the Monongahela river today while at Latrobe he said that 600 non-union men stayed away from their posts.

Miners Seeking Other Jobs in Scranton Field

SCRANTON, April 3.—Thousands of miners in the Scranton district, where approximately 70,000 men and boys are idle, were out today in search of employment in other industries.

Building contractors were hiring miners. The suspension remains 100 per cent effective in the upper coal fields. All parts of the field are reported quiet.

Levee Breaks in Arkansas.
ELGINA, Ark., April 3.—Further caving of the levee at Old Town, Ark., on the Mississippi river was reported today, developing another situation causing anxiety. Seventy feet of the main levee adjacent to the caved area of 175 feet previously reported, fell into the river last night. As a result there has been a renewed recruiting of men for repairing the break.

Summary of Coal Strike Situation

By Associated Press

Suspension of work in the union coal mines of the country virtually will continue today, according to reports from union sources and claims were made that the miners' cause had been strengthened by walk-outs in some non-union districts.

President Lewis of the Mine Workers told the House Labor Committee that the resumption of work depended entirely on the operators. Miners claimed a complete tie-up in the New River fields of West Virginia, non-union territory heretofore.

Sherman anthracite mining district reported suspension 100 per cent effective with 70,000 idle.

Geological Survey announced bituminous production of 11,500,000 tons in the week ended March 25.

Kansas operators made no effort to open mines pending separate meetings of miners and operators in Kansas City today to discuss industrial court's order for a 36-day continuance of old working agreement.

Meetings in Chicago of rail union groups today was expected to discuss relations of railroad workers to the miners suspension of work.

Lewis Declares Future Is Up to Coal Operators

By Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Union coal miners who suspended work Saturday in the nation's bituminous and anthracite fields were delinquent today by John J. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, to begin discussions of ending the suspension of mining operations at the earliest possible date but the resumption of coal production entirely depends upon the future attitude of the coal operators.

Mr. Lewis made this declaration before the House Labor Committee which is holding hearings on the Bland resolution to direct appointment by the President of a committee to investigate the coal industry. Discussing the resolution under consideration, the United Mine Workers president asserted his organization would welcome any impartial and judicial investigation of the general conditions in the coal industry and especially the facts relating to investments and profits, conservation of fuel, application of uniform methods of safeguarding life and limb and industrial relations and conditions.

"Despite the failure of our previous attempts to secure a meeting with the operators for the purpose of making a new wage agreement the miners are still ready to meet at any time if any such meeting is possible," he said.

Style League is dead.

Cast Up on Atlantic Beach; Husband
Is Missing.

By Associated Press

NORFOLK, Va., April 3.—The body of the young woman found on the beach at Ocean View yesterday was identified today as that of Mrs. Ruth Mercer, formerly Miss Ruth Genaway of Chicago. Her husband, Edward P. Mercer, until recently, was attached to the coast guard cutter Manning. According to the police, he could not be located today.

Mrs. Mercer was seen alive Saturday night and physicians declared the body had not been in the water more than 10 hours. While indications are that Mrs. Mercer was assaulted before she entered the water, none of the wounds on her face and body were of such a nature that would have caused her death, physicians said.

Lesson on Cleanliness.

On Friday Miss Berline Collins held her nutrition class in the schools, assisted by Miss Anna Galley and Miss N. in Haslund. Gold stars were given to Helen Collins, who gained one and one-fourth pounds, and to Bessie Shippard who gained three-fourths of a pound. The lesson was on general cleanliness. A full bath should be taken at least twice a week in order that the pores of the skin may function. The children were told hands should be washed before touching food. The children were told to eat and cough into handkerchiefs in order not to spread colds also not to eat of a brother's apple, candy, etc., and not to trade pencils in school. Two new songs were sung. This is the time of year when children naturally lose weight as they begin to play harder. Children who are underweight should not play so vigorously especially such things as jumping rope, roller skating and baseball as they will run more weight off. A rest period every day is great help in building up weight. Miss Collins said.

OLD INDIAN CANOE FOUND

Supposed to Have Been Used by Them in Traveling.

The amateur hunters this season, who are hunting in every nook and corner for rats have discovered on what has for years been known as the "Cathay Bed," near Shawtown, Ind., a real Indian canoe, roughly dug out and part of it in a fair state of preservation.

About one-half of the canoe is deeply imbedded in the mud, and from what is to be seen of it the length is estimated to be about 18 feet.

This bed of hard bottom was a landing place of the Indians, it being directly opposite the "Winding Place" where the Indians crossed the Ohio, in their travel from the Canada to Mandan Springs.

It was here that three roughly-hewn canoes were found after the Indians left this section. The canoes were kept in a state of preservation for many years.

PIECKARET, THE CONQUEROR
OF THE IROQUOIS

PARENTS PUT A LOG CHAIN ON BOY'S NECK

Father and Mother of Young Merklinger Say They Wanted To Keep Him Home.

IT TOOK a mighty warrior of any tribe to hold his own with the Iroquois back in the colonial days. But Pieckaret (Blackface—"Little Black") did it and his name became a word of terror to them during the perennial war between those "Romans of the West" and his people, the Adirondacks.

One day early in 1644 Pieckaret set out on a long war trail toward Lake Champlain. As he neared the Iroquois villages he reversed his snowshoes so that if enemy scouts found his trail it would be leading away from their villages instead of toward it. Late that night he entered their camp and stealthily crept into one of the lodges.

By the low burning fire in the center he saw that its occupants were asleep. Walking swiftly and noiselessly, the Adirondack killed and scalped all.

The next morning a terrible cry of grief and rage arose when the dead bodies were found. Pursuing parties followed a trail of snowshoes leading away from the village but the warriors returned without catching a glimpse of the murderer. That night Pieckaret slipped out, riding place after place and again killed and scalped two more warriors on guard in every village. His name was known.

Then he discovered the tent where the sentinel neared the dead bear skins. Suddenly throwing aside the snow skin, he struck a terrible blow with his war club, wounded his war whoop and dashed into the forest. The Iroquois were hot on his trail for this resembled the sight and far into the next day, but even then there were only six of his pursuers left.

Spreading to the side of the trail, Pieckaret hid in a hollow tree and watched the chase speed past. Then he followed. That night while the tree Iroquois watched his enemy, a raccoon crept into their hollow. A was this tree and fell six times. The next morning Pieckaret with six more scalps sped North to exhibit to his tribesmen these trophies of the greatest individual feat of arms ever performed by an Indian warrior.

A few years later the Adirondacks made a treaty with the Iroquois. One day Pieckaret had a delegation from the Five Nations on their way to visit the governor of Canada. Singing a peace song in honor of the truce between the tribes, he advanced with unextended arms to meet them. His answer was a volley from a dozen guns and Pieckaret the Adirondack champion, lay dead.

GAME IN ARCTIC ABUNDANT

Hunters Have Had the Best Season
They Have Enjoyed for the Last Twenty Years.

According to mail advices from Nome, Alaska, this is the periodic year of abundant wild animal life in the Arctic regions.

Early winter with tremendously large ice does in the Beaufort sea gave the natives of Kukpuk a good year of polar bear hunting in '20 years. More of these animals have been shot or killed to date than for many years combined. Only in exceptionally severe winters does this noted of the Arctic abound so far south. Accordingly Northwest Alaska prepared for a long cold winter.

The white king of the northern regions is a combined hunter-warrior. He has no fixed habitat, but goes where game is most plentiful, coming down with the ice pack from the North when the seal, walrus and whale move.

Unlike any other animal, the polar bear keeps to the ice and will seek shore only when cut off from open water. It is the best swimmer of the animal world. Loose-jointed and grizzly, skinning with a skin that is badly the creature is however very fleet.

No game laws will ever guard the great polar bear for he lives in a region little frequented by human beings and keeps entirely out of sight.

Every 20 years or often a severe winter will induce them to crawl 1,000 miles southward and thus become the victims of the long distance rifles of the hunters.

FIRST ON AMERICAN STAGE

"Beggar's Opera" Caused Some Controversy When It Was Produced at New York in 1915.

The first musical play presented upon the American stage was the Beggar's Opera by John Gay which was produced at the National theater in New York 177 years ago.

A considerable portion of the 10,000 people that comprised the population of New York attended the performance although there were not few who protested against the "real" taste and refinement of the play.

The Murray & Kran company a band of comedians who went to New York from Littlefield's was responsible for the production. It was a benefit performance for Thomas Kinn who personally called on the leading citizens and sold tickets. The performance began at 6 o'clock and was over at 9:15. A harpist did not play during the first 100 feet. Dr. Daniel Persimmon was an untrained entertainer between the acts.

The Sporting World

St. Vincent and Caseys to Play Three Game Series for City League Championship

First Clash Will Be at Parochial Hall on Wednesday.

FANS MUCH INTERESTED

By James M. Driscoll
Sporting Editor

Following a meeting of the board of control Saturday evening in the Unity Fraternity Club rooms, it was announced that it had been determined to play a three-game series between the Casey Club and St. Vincent basketball teams for the championship of the City League, the first game to be fought out Wednesday evening.

The fans of Connellsville are in for one of the greatest basketball trials of their lives if the indications all carry. The St. Vincent Club is the only team to defeat the Caseys during the whole season and that was only after a five-minute extra period. A repetition of this is likely to occur again Wednesday night when the two outfits clash for first honors in the series.

The best two out of three games will determine the pennant winner. The wearers of the green are anticipating the greatest game of their career Wednesday and desire the first victory the worst kind of a way. Such an advantage would be worth a great deal to them as the Casey Club is acknowledged the strongest outfit and the team winning the initial contest will have the "edge" on its opponents.

Casey Club supporters have no doubt that their team will win two in a row but there is a big group of loyal fans in the little coke town of Leibersong who will back their outfit to the limit. Many contend the Green team plays a faster game than the Caseys.

The decision to play a three-game series is very satisfactory to the fans. All wanted to see the two outfits clinch in a real series fight and as a result there is far greater interest than if the title had been decided by one game.

The games will all be played at the Parochial Hall where the league season was finished out. No change has been made in the price of admission but there will be only one game on the evenings of the title contests. The games will not begin until 8:30 o'clock in order to allow everyone time to be present.

HOWITZER AND CAPSTAN PLAY TUESDAY NIGHT

SOUTH CONNELLSVILLE, April 3.—The Howitzer basketball team will meet Capstan on the Capstan floor tomorrow evening, the game being arranged this morning. This will more than likely be Capstan's last game this season and it will be out fighting harder than usual for victory. The Howitzers on the other hand will be out to put a dent in the plans of the glass blowers. The soldier boys have been defeated only twice this season, and will do their best to keep from going to three times.

This being the first time this season these two teams have met a large crowd of fans is expected. Members of the Howitzer Company are expected to be out in force. The game will start promptly at 8 o'clock. "Abe" Fills, official cheer leader will be there in all his noise and glory mostly voice.

The Volunteer Fire Department will hold its regular semi-monthly meeting tomorrow evening at the fire station. All members are requested to be present.

Miss Margaret Travis is confined to her home in Hampton street with grippe. Ralph Younkin of South Pittsburg is not able to be around again, after being confined to his home with grippe during the past week.

Miss Alice Moorman will return today to Muskingum College after spending a vacation with her parents. James Houck sold his home at Murphy avenue and Vine street to Elmer Lager.

Blaine Helms is just tiling a wireless outfit at his home in Ryndam street.

Coker Scholastics Defeat Confluence In Basketball Game

The Connellsville Scholastics composed of the members of the Connellsville High School basketball team whose season has just been completed went to Confluence Saturday night and met the "Tin" School at that place.

Sols on was the leading scorer for Connellsville getting eight goals from the floor. McCormick had two and Lowney hung up a trio.

In the second half the locals put up a stiff guard and held the mountaineers to a lone field goal.

The line-up for Connellsville—35, Connellsville—35, Sols on—22, McCormick—F—Rush, Lowney—G—Fisher, Vansickle—G—Black, Field goals—Sols on 8, McCormick 1, Lowney & Vansickle 2, Rush 1, Sols on—Gros Fisher, Paul goals—Sols on 5 out of 6, Gros 10 out of 12.

NEW ATHLETIC CLUB TO PROMOTE CLEAN SPORTS OF EVERY KIND IN CITY

A group of local sportsmen interested in the maintenance of Connellsville on the sport map of the state, and professing a desire for the uplifting of all branches under that name have organized the Connellsville Athletic Club the sole purpose of which is to give red-blooded men and women of the coke region a brand of sport such as they have been unable to see in many years.

The club will be back of the boxing game here and will also put football and basketball teams in the field. A baseball team is also being considered for the future, but as long as the Connellsville Independents are successfully conducted no opposition team will go on the diamond.

The first project to be attempted will be the staging of a boxing match at Stasiv Hall, West Side on Saturday, April 15. The fight encountered the first since a ban was placed on such events will be for the benefit of the playground work in Connellsville.

The main bout contenders will be Johnny King of Latrobe City and hard hitting negro Bill Carter. It is the first clash between the two men and indicates an interest on the part of the new sporting organization.

Class, physical training will precede the main bout but no man will receive a bonus. The club intends to put only the best the boxing world has to offer in the ring in this city.

W. L. Turner of the West Side known in the sporting field as referee has been engaged to match maker by the new organization. He is well acquainted with the merits of the mites and with instructions to secure only the best men and put on well-balanced fights the coke region population is to be provided with A No 1 entertainment.

Tube City Boxer Anxious to Meet Johnny Pollock

Bernard Kelly, Jr., manager of Eddie Boiland, "pride of McKeesport" writes The Courier he is out with a challenge to the bust in the game at 128 pounds but none. No personal challenge Johnny Pollock.

Boiland, Kelly writes, has stopped

Bricky Ryan in two rounds, McCull in one round, K. O. Weaver in two rounds and always give the fans something for their money. He is willing to fight Pollock, winner take all. He is matched to meet Honey Bolt at Williamsport, W. Va., on April 19. Boiland is also anxious to meet Freddy Lutz, Eddie Barr or my other good boy. Kelly's address is 1706 Beech avenue, McKeesport, Pa. Call Bell phone, 1629-W.

COKER TEAM WAS ONE TO BE PROUD OF, FANS HERE SAY

Expressions heard from various persons known as real sportsmen in this city, indicate that the Connellsville High School team was more fully appreciated this season than many in past years. The squad of little players won the admiration of everyone who attended the games by the dashing, reckless fighting methods employed.

Although the team came through the season with a total of 15 defeats it won 19 other games. Of the defeats eight occurred away from home. Three were won when the team played away. Sixteen games were won at home to seven lost. The last six games played at home have been victories.

Starting the season with a hopelessly poor outfit the team rounded into shape under Coach C. H. Wine. In Welsh he developed a youngster who despite his youth was placed on the All-Scholastic team for Section 3. Lowney the rangy center, and McCormick the hard-set fighting forward the Cokers had had in years and a general utility man also got mention on the second team.

Mickey is a hard working player and he frequently drew the game out of the fire by his goal shooting in the critical moments. Lowney was a good pivot man and got the tip from the best of the centers when he set himself to it.

Sonsen being the only man to be of the High School team to graduate this June there is considerable interest concerning the election of a captain to succeed him.

The bigger crowd which even attended a buckeye ball game at the Pinto Hall is expected to attend the first championship game to be played at 8:30 Wednesday evening.

SUIT AND DRESS MODES OF TODAY

Effect of New Creations on Public to Determine Styles that Will Hold.

SKIRTS AND COATS TO MATCH

What Plays Important Part in Completing Millady's Wardrobe—New type of Suit with the Abbreviated Jacket.

Quite fascinating are the latest showings at the dress shops. Everything notes a fashion writer in the New York Times is now and fresh and charged with vibrations of promised springtime. And in spite of the usual line which is always confronting us where fashions are concerned, about there being no change to speak of still there is every subtle difference to the lines of the silhouettes and the character of all important details.

The immediate concern of every woman is—what will be the first spring dress and suits? What will the colors be? What materials are most suitable and most wearable all in one combination? At how many inches from the floor will the skirts stop, the downy trend? Will sleeves be much the same or changed in any way? And materials? In question, thus general line.

The only thing to do is for one who attempts to give definite answers to this question is to watch a new creation and its effect upon the public. So that just now there are a few who will be in regular with the latest, which indicates that they will be prominent. Rather than that we cannot just now.

There is a general feeling that the cut has gone out or that it is not so much in fashion as was the case sometimes in the past. That may or may not be so, but nevertheless there are any number of new and lovely-looking suits upon the market. Most of them (with the exception of the sport suits) are characterized by the fact that instead of being made with skirt and blouse, instead they are made with a dress in one piece and a coat to go with it.

Blouse Harmonizes With Skirt

Sometimes there is a clever amalgamation of these two ideas, and this means, in order to harmonize so perfectly with the skirt that the two together look for all the world like a one-piece frock. This latter combination has one big advantage over the old-fashioned idea of blouse and skirt in that when the woman wears it there can be another one. And since this is the portion of the dress which always shows the first signs of wear, there is more in the idea than might be at first visible.

But there are so many pitfalls in the direction of combining blouse and skirt that if one attempts that the art of dressing one must be more than usually clever in constructing or choosing the colors and in the manner in which one harmonizes the two. Not all blouses will do with any skirt, but the two of them have to be thought out together and can do so that when worn in unison they will look as though they belonged together.

An old rustling blouse shows a particularly nice waist which does well when combined with a separate skirt and vest with a coat to match. In spite of the fact that the blouse is uniform it is none the less has the quality of being able to blend with a skirt of some other material in a perfectly artistic manner. This blouse is made of yellow crepe, often with many bunches of it. It shows about a dozen and a half yards of a warmer velvet to make it look as though it was designed to be worn with a full brown skirt, a light bodice and a cap made of that material and then the cap should be light. The same colors of shades of pink over the other in order to carry out successfully the color scheme. The embroidery on the waist is in the blouse and it has a large addition of roses running from top to bottom and is set with a row of silk threads. There is a lot which is charming about the combination and which for a good deal tried to get to get the color of the skirt and the dots in the blouse.

Good Life of the Costume
For a woman who has to give her spangles on my suit or that matter a great deal of wear this may not be a good idea. A skirt is a certain boon for it just about denotes the life of her costume and when there is so much expense involved that consideration becomes an important item.

The girdle for this blouse is made of a soft crepe in a shade of brown midway between the yellow of the blouse and the brown of the skirt. Then it has a long fringe of all of the varicolored threads used in the embroidery on the trimming of the blouse which also serves to tie the two separate parts of the costume into one single unit.

This type of blouse for the costume will be far more beautiful and fashionable than the old and accepted variety of white shirtwaist. In fact the latter seems to have disappeared entirely off the face of the earth, except in its tailored state for sport suits and as a hand-made French thing to go with the general well-dressed appearance of the American woman.

There is a new type of suit with the very much abbreviated jacket and a little vest that adds a touch of color in a new and original way. It is a relief to see suits getting away from that collar and cuff trimming which after all is so obvious. And this little waistcoat creates a freshness of feeling which will be a relief to many women who long to wear this sort of suit and still insist upon having their clothes in the fore ranks of fashion.

Loose Sort of Homespun Weave
Wool stain is the material used for this suit. It is the loosest sort of homespun weave, and it also has about it a weariness of character that makes it take very interesting looks when developed either in the little spring suit or in a coat dress meant to be worn on the street. It is a fabric which is a little more dressy than the woolen homespun which is going into the sport suits and yet its weave is so much like that of homespun that it keeps the fabric in the class of popularly acquired materials.

Following the cut for the long waistline that is bloused many of the spring suits especially those that are not from fur show that long bloused Russian line with a very short blousing peplum and a high standing collar. It is an informal sort of suit but one that is extremely youthful in its appearance and which for that reason is bound to exert a strong influence upon spring styles. With the high close fitting Russian waist is the thing, and the whole makes an interesting silhouette which is now in every way.

Black has been so predominant along the winter street fashions and we have become so accustomed to seeing it used in combination with gray and cream and tan that it is hard to realize that it will yet go out as a seasonal fashion. However there are some colors that in bright blue or dark wine this spring will take the lead against this established supremacy of black. There will be many to welcome the advent of this old tried and true color. If the woman have the dark blue habit so strongly established in their systems that they cannot face the possibility of wearing any other color, in fact she can not seem to feel at home in black, unless it may be blue which it is becoming, carries with it much charm and character though when it is not exactly the right tone for the personality in question there can be no other color more insignificant looking and more ineffectual as a fashionable thing.

I most cried out then. Some way it hurt to have him say it like that, right out—that he wanted me to go. You see, I'd begun to think he was getting to his mind so very much having me here. All the last two weeks I'd been different really different. But more of that anon. I'll go on with what happened at the table. And as I said I did feel bad to have him speak like that. And I can remember now just how the lump came right in my throat.

Then Aunt Jane spoke, stiff and dignified.

"Oh, very well of course if you put it that way. I can quite well understand that you would want her to go for your sake. But I thought just under the circumstances you would manage somehow to put up with the noise and—"

"Jane!" Just like that he interrupted and he thundered over so that Aunt Jane actually jumped. And I guess I did, too. He had sprung to his feet. "Jane let us close this matter once for all. I am not letting the child go for my sake. I am letting her go for her own. So far as I am concerned, if I consulted our ones wishes but my own, I should—keep her here always."

With that he turned and strode from the room leaving Aunt Jane and me just staring after him.

But only for a minute did I stare. It came to me then what he had said—that he would like to keep me here always. For I had heard it even when he had sold the last word very low, and in a queer indistinct voice. I was sure I had heard it, and I suddenly realized it again. So I ran after him, and that time, if I had known him, I think I would have hugged him. But I didn't find him. He must have gone some way from the house. He wasn't even to be seen to the observatory. I went out to see.

He didn't come in all the afternoon. I watched for that too. And when he did come—well I wouldn't have dared to hug him then. He had his very steely, iron not thinking of you at all air and he just came in to supper and then went into the library without saying hardly anything. Yet some way the look on his face made me cry. I don't know why.

The next day he was more as he has been since we had that talk. In the pure. And he had been different since then you know. He really has. He's talked quite a lot with us. I have said and I think he's been trying part of the time, to find something I'll be interested in. Honestly I think he's been trying to wake up for Charlie Steeved and Stella Mayhew and Charlie Smith and Mr. Livingstone. I think that's why he took me to walk that day in the woods and why he took me out to the observatory to see the stars quite a number of times. Twice he's asked me to play to him and once he asked me if Mary wasn't about ready to dress up in Marie's clothes again. But he was joking, then I know for Aunt Jane was right there in the house. Besides I saw the twinkle in his eyes that I've seen there once or twice before. I just love that twinkle.

But that hasn't come any since Mother's letter to Aunt Jane arrived. He's been the same in one way, yet different in another. Honestly if it didn't seem so godly absurd for any thing I should say he was actually sorry to have me go. But of course that isn't possible. Oh yes I know he said that day at the dinner table that he should like to keep me always. But I don't think he really meant it. He hasn't acted a mite like that since and I guess he said it just to hush up Aunt Jane and make her stop arguing the matter.

Anyways I'm going tomorrow. And I'm so excited I can hardly breathe.

CHAPTER VI

BOSTON AGAIN

Well, I came last night. Mother and Grandfather and Aunt Hatch and Baby Lester all met me at the station. And I'm not glad to see them. Well, I just guess I was!

I was specially glad on account of having such a dreadful time with Father that morning. I mean I was feeling specially lonesome and homesick, and not belonging anywhere like this. You see it was this way. I'd been sort of hoping, I know that at the last when I came to really go, Father would get back the understanding smile and the twinkle, and show that he really did care for me and was so sorry to have me go. But don't me. Why he never was so stern and so

My first visit was due to a terrible cold, just as bad as you can imagine, and I was very ill. I had to leave my bed, I had to leave my home, I had to leave my work, I had to leave my friends. All this was very bad.

My first visit to a doctor in this town didn't you say? I called him a little later, and he said, "I'm sorry, I'm old but I have not had time to read the book of medicine in the last few years, but I have time now." I told him this was my first visit.
